COMMENTS RE NOTICE OF PROPOSED RULEMAKING

The petition stresses diversification of ownership of radio stations and increased listening choices for the public. It emphasizes that broadcast ownership is no longer limited to just the wealthy. It also emphasizes that many LPFM stations may be constructed for less than the price of a new car.

2. I am an African American engineer, former mathematics professor, and one of three petitioner's to file an Informal Petition to Deny the assignment of Noncommercial Educational Radio Broadcast Station WDCU (FM), Washington, DC from the University of the District of Columbia (UDC) to National Cable Satellite Corporation D/B/A C-SPAN. Accordingly, I have the background and experience to assess this petition.

3. I strongly support the petition to create LPFM Broadcast Service across America to better serve the public interest, convenience and necessity by lowering the barrier to entry of radio station ownership for women, minorities and individuals with limited financial means. Moreover, I propose that the Commission implement very restrictive rules for ownership, control, and assignment of licenses as well as the flexibility for licensees to increase the coverage area by interconnecting with other licensees.

A. The petition requires owners to live within 50 miles of the station antenna site so that the community will benefit by having station owners who have intimate knowledge of the community's needs and interests. I agree with the petition but this requirement does not assure that local or city residents, where most minorities live, will become station owners. Inner city residents have always resented suburban residents owning and controlling their rights and property. I propose that the Commission develop more restrictive requirements to assure that inner city residents will have the opportunity to become owners, controllers, and operators of LPFM stations in their locality.

B. I also propose that assignment of licenses be more restrictive. When writing the petition to deny the assignment of the noncommercial license of WDCU-FM, I discovered that the Commission had no rules because of deregulation to deny the sale. This was frustrating because the station not only supported the curriculum at UDC, Historically Black College and University (HBCU), but it also provided special services to the community, such as the WDCU Mentors Program for Washington inner city youth.

Moreover, the station was so well liked that many of us considered it as being a National treasure yet there was no mechanism in place to deny its sale. The irony is that the financial problems that led to the sale of WDCU-FM were caused by the Board of Trustees and former Presidents mismanaging UDC's resources for over 20 years, yet these public trustees were allowed to sell the station at the detriment of UDC and listeners. I would like to see the Commission implement rule restrictions for LPFM stations to prevent duplicating the sale of another WDCU-FM.

C. I also propose that the Commission provide licensees with the flexibility to interconnect their respective coverage areas to extend coverage, specifically for the event station, for events like running or bicycle marathons, multiethnic events. This kind of flexibility can also be used to enhance cross-ethnic marketing deals. Traditionally, African Americans have always targeted African Americans and Asians have always targeted Asians. However, as minority populations increase many Asian stores and restaurants are locating in urban neighborhoods where African Americans shop. This trend is bringing business people from different ethnic groups together to look for ways to collaborate, attract capital and break into new markets, reduce racial tensions.

Being able to extend the coverage area can enhance minority businesses by increasing cross-ethnic marketing deals.

4. In summary, I propose that the Commission implement the petition for LPFM Broadcast Service as well as more restrictive rules for ownership, control, and assignment of licenses. I also propose that the Commission provide flexibility for licensees to increase the coverage area by interconnecting with other licensees.
